Learn how iRonin.IT created a successful remote work culture 10 years ago
Our clients, who know that iRonin.IT has been a remote-first company for 10 years, have recently started asking us about tips and solutions for operating this way. Remote work has suddenly become a necessity to many businesses who have not prepared for this and are worried about a number of problems.

<td>No control over employees’ and teams’ progress.</td>
<td>We use task tracking and project management tools (like Jira and Gitlab), time tracking tools (our own PM Sentry) and use a CRM to measure key business metrics.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Difficulties with time management and switching into work mode while at home.</td>
<td>Thanks to good time management and open channels of communication with clients, we work as effectively from home as we would from an office. Team members choose their schedules for a better work-life balance.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Impeded communication.</td>
<td>We run daily video standup calls, use Slack messaging every day, and share files through the G Suite and Dropbox Paper.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Difficulties with concentration and engagement.</td>
<td>Team members receive mentorship support and are able to achieve more and deliver tasks more efficiently from home than they would from a noisy, distracting open space. If they want to, however, we provide them with coworking space once a week.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Slower information flow.</td>
<td>We complete and store much of our work online. This includes reports and communicating with clients on our progress.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A lack of social interactions between team members.</td>
<td>We organize regular team integration events, all around our country.</td>
</tr>

Why did we decide to found a remote-first company and cultivated this culture for so long?

The benefits of remote work:

- Superfast video meetings that are easy to schedule and fit between other tasks.
- Time saved on commuting. Our teammates are well-rested and lead balanced lifestyles.
- Lowered administrative costs: instead of maintaining an office, we can channel the money into motivational bonuses for employees.
- Improved efficiency in dispersed teams.

Why use our know-how?

Remote work at iRonin.IT was a part of our culture since the company’s founding in 2010.

It’s not just “remote work” to us - it’s who we are as a company. Remote work processes are built into our culture.

We’ve been doing this successfully for 10 years in the IT industry.

Less office stress creates a comfortable working environment in which employees are much more dedicated to performing tasks. When a team works 100% remotely, everybody shares knowledge and supports each other as the lack of physical closeness causes a natural need for contact, and that means a lot of calls and productive online meetings.
